WILLIAM HICKMAN HANGED FOR CHILD'S MURDER

PARADES ARE WITNESSED BY BIG THROGS

FINE PAGEANT PRESENTED BY SCHOOLS HERE

Huge Throng Witnesses Parade of Beautiful Floats and Costumes.

The pageant of the Circleville public schools Thursday afternoon in which 1800 pupils took part was a beautiful spectacle of youth and childhood. The endless hours that the teachers worked on the costumes and floats were well spent when the result is a parade like that of Thursday, which was witnessed by great crowds of people from Athens, Columbus, Jackson, Lancaster, Chillicothe as well as many smaller towns in this vicinity.

The music of three bands placed at intervals along the line of parade provided music for the pageant which was headed by directors of the Pumpkin Show, the Circleville police force, board of education, Superintendent J. O. Ziegler and Elementary Supervisor E. L. Daley.

JAPANESE GARDEN
The first float, that of the Franklin school, was "A Japanese Garden," with trellises overhung profusely with colorful wisteria. The three winsome Japanese maids were Helen Conover, Laura Mae Lane and Helen Ely. The other girls of the school wore costumes representing cherry blossoms in striking colors of lavender, purple, pink and yellow and red and white.

The boys were garbed in artist costumes and carried palettes and brushes.

The Walnut school float was a "Woodland scene" affected by the use of autumn leaves of the forest, and surrounded by a lattice with trailing morning glories. The "Bumble Bee" on the float was Bert Richey, and the butterflies were Sarah Mae DeLong and Waneta Barr. The children walking from this school were garbed as wood elves, bumble bees, gardeners, blue bells, buttercups, morning glories, and white and yellow daisies.

A real moss covered old oaken bucket hung in the well on the High school float which was "An Old-Fashioned Garden" with an old-fashioned lady and little girl seated near the well. These were Margaret Butler and Betty Cooper in pretty dresses and poke bonnets. Some of the girls that paraded after the float also wore this costume.

The other boys and girls of High school represented were gardeners, roses, fuchsia, sweet-peas and pansies.

FOUNTAIN ON FLOAT
The most pretentious of the grade floats was that of Corwin school which was a gorgeous "Rose Garden" with a spouting fountain in the center, surrounded by full blown roses and rose buds. The garden in the garden scene was Junior Dunlap, and the roses were Kathleen White, Ruth Robinson, Vona Lee Martin and Charlotte Hegley. Coming after this scene were garden flowers in a variety of beautiful colors including, narcissus, double hollyhocks, sunflowers, pansies, forget-me-nots, tulips, cactus, dahlias, cosmos, hyacinths, wisteria, peonies and roses.

The Circleville high school in the parade represented the important events in Circleville's history. After the football float with its red and black trimming, (Turn to page five, please)

HURT WHEN SEDAN
OVERTURNS 5 TIMES

Charles Henry Morris, 22, of Dana, W. Va., suffered a bad gash on the forehead about 6 p.m. Thursday when a new Ford sedan he was driving through to Charleston, W. Va., struck fresh gravel in the Jackson detour at the Kelle Holes and overturned five times.

The car was wrecked almost beyond repair. Morris was brought to Circleville by other drivers of the new cars, which formed a procession from the Columbus Ford branch.

According to Dr. G. W. Heffner, who attended the injuries of Morris he was employed by the Charleston Motor Co.

Gossip—Murder

Gossip across the backyard fences is blamed for the murder, of which Mrs. Florence Bourne, 47, of San Francisco, is accused. She was jailed after a neighbor, Mrs. Ida Montalvo, 28, died of stab wounds allegedly inflicted by Mrs. Bourne after a quarrel.

AMANDA MAN HIT BY AUTO

George Hall, painter of Amanda, was painfully injured Thursday night about 8 p.m. when he stepped directly in front of the machine of E. C. Freeman as he was driving through Amanda.

Mr. Hall was carried to his home by Albert Ream, Charles Moore and Cecil Johnson who witnessed the accident and Dr. Reichelderfer of Amanda attended him. It was found that while he had a deep cut over his right ear, was badly bruised, and may have suffered a fracture of a small bone in his right arm, it is not thought that any of his injuries are serious. However, arrangements were made to remove the injured man to the Lancaster hospital, Friday afternoon where an X-ray will be made.

Mr. Freeman, who resides on the Cedar Hill-pk., was returning to his home after visiting the Circleville Pumpkin Show when the accident occurred. He was prevented from turning away from Mr. Hall when he stepped in the path of the auto by the approach of another car, it is said.

A deep cut above the right ear of Mr. Hall and a badly bruised right arm, which it is feared also has a small bone broken and the flesh about the elbow badly crushed are among his most serious injuries.

COOLIDGE EXPECTED TO ENTER ARENA

President To Answer Charges of Gov. Smith, Friends Believe.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—President Coolidge, it was believed here today, will enter the presidential campaign dramatically in defense of the repeated charges by Governor Alfred E. Smith that the administration is "misrepresenting" the true situation in its economy claims.

His speech would constitute not only a defense of the administration, but also a campaign speech for Herbert Hoover, who is standing upon the administration's record but the repeated charge of the Democratic presidential candidate has changed the situation, his friends point out, and they believe he will enter the campaign. Smith has attacked the administration and singled out Coolidge personally in his charges.

FIREMEN CALLED

The Circleville fire department was called to the death of John Moore in front of the Herald office Friday morning to extinguish a small blaze in a gasoline stove. There was no loss.

BRITON FLYER NOW COUNTED IN HERO LIST

Hope Almost Abandoned That Daring Aviator Survives Ocean Flight.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The name of Lieut. Commander H. C. MacDonald today had been added to the long list of those who mysteriously disappeared as they tried to fly across the north Atlantic, and only a few believed he would ever be found or his story ever learned.

Alone and with a daring comparable only to that shown by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, MacDonald started from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, Wednesday noon (New York time) in a tiny Gypsy Moth plane.

His plane was sighted once. The steamer Hardsberg messaged the Leviathan that a plane had passed over her at 12:30 a.m. GMT Friday. That was at a position more than 700 miles east of Newfoundland.

RUNS INTO STORMS
Between there and the Irish coast the tiny Moth plane would have encountered vicious storms, ones that ripped over the Atlantic with wind velocities ranging between 40 and 50 miles an hour.

And today all along the Irish coast and in England there was no trace of the gallant young aviator who set out to get a great thrill.

There was a few who held to the hope that MacDonald's luck—the luck that carried him successfully through a submarine campaign in the world war and the luck which saved him from cannibalistic tribesmen near Baghdad—still held with the novice pilot.

HAS SLENDER CHANCE
They pointed out that after he had been sighted by the Hardsberg he might have been carried off course by the high winds and might have landed on the northern tip of Scotland or the British Isles. Other hopefuls said he might have been forced to land on Iceland.

But most observers, who have watched a host of illustrious pilots start gaily on the great cross-ocean adventure never to return, felt that MacDonald was dead, with the one slender chance of life resting in his plane having landed near some non-wireless ship which might have been along the trans-Atlantic course.

SMITH TAKES CHICAGO TOUR

Democratic Nominee Will Pre- face Speech With Auto Ride About City.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith is to conclude his personal tour in the west today with a 40 mile automobile tour of Chicago and a farewell night speech. It is to be his biggest day of the campaign thus far in many respects.

Tens and perhaps hundreds of thousands of persons are expected to line the way for a glimpse of the Democratic presidential nominee's brown derby smile. Newspapers here all have advertised in minute detail, in double-columned stories on the first pages, the places he will go and just about the time he will pass the important street intersections.

Smith is scheduled to start at noon from his downtown hotel. The schedule calls for a two and a half hour parade.

The governor has practically finished the speech he is to deliver tonight at the 131st regiment armory in the downtown district. But in accordance with his custom recently adopted, he will not divulge the subject he has chosen.

If you pass one up, you can always get another." And to prove the validity of her philosophy, Myrtle Richards has carried her theories out in practice, by marrying and suing a variety of seven men in less than fifteen years. She retains an attorney on a ready basis.

NOOSE SNAPS LIFE THREAD OF 'THE FOX'

Repents In Closing Days of Career For Crime Which Horrified Nation.

SAN QUENTIN, State Penitentiary, California, Oct. 19.—William Edward Hickman went to his death on the gallows at San Quentin prison today for the murder of Marian Parker, twelve-year-old daughter of a Los Angeles banker.

The former Kansas City school boy was hanged at 10:10 A.M., Pacific Coast time, after repenting in the closing days of his life for the kidnapping and murder which had climaxed his career of crime.

The stillness of death hung over San Quentin prison today as the hour approached for hanging William Edward Hickman.

ALL WORK SUSPENDED
All work in the prison shops was suspended until after the execution.

Convicts went to their breakfasts in the main dining room as usual, then returned to their quarters, and were locked up in the long tiers of cells.

Only a few old trustees were at large within the courtyard of the prison. Guards in observation towers and at points of vantage along the walls kept constant watch over the enclosure.

The two guards of the death watch, Charles Alston and Fred Higaboom, said "Hickman was restless during the second night in the cell of the condemned. He had slept soundly the night before.

SLENDER FITFUL
Most of the early part of the night he spent in short periods of fitful slumber broken by turns of walking about the cage.

He told his guards of his entire life, from his early boyhood in Arkansas, through his high school days in Kansas City and down to the killing of Marian Parker in Los Angeles last December. For which he is to be hanged.

The condemned youth wrote three letters during the night. They were to his brother, his mother, Mrs. Eva Hickman of Kansas City and Jerome Walsh, Kansas City attorney, who defended him in his trial.

He gave the letters to the guards outside his wooden cage and asked that they be mailed after he was hanged.

PLAYS PHONOGRAPH
At 5 a.m. Hickman got up from his cot and turned on the phonograph that had been brought to the death house for him.

One of his favorite records was "In a Monastery Garden."

Hickman watched the dawn through the window of the room as the sun rose across San Francisco bay. He then turned to the guards and said:

"Just a few hours now."

"If you want to know why I killed Marian Parker, read the first chapter of Romans," he remarked. "That will tell you better than I can—greed."

TARLTON INVENTOR HAS PLANE DEVICE

W. J. Spangler, 50, of Tarlton, has just received another patent from the government on an air-plane stabilizer. The government tried the device on its experimental field in New Jersey Wednesday.

The pilot jumped from the plane at a height of 5000 feet in a parachute and the plane came down and landed safely.

Mr. Spangler has a number of inventions to his credit, among some of which are in use with the National Cash Register Co. Another is a new clay pigeon.

Three Walnut-Twp. Brothers Walk Away With Grand Prize For Pumpkins.

More than 25,000 persons are expected to visit Circleville's Pumpkin Show Friday and an even greater throng is predicted for Saturday if the ideal weather which has smiled upon the annual fall celebration since the rain on Wednesday, the opening day, continues.

It is estimated that 16,000 spectators witnessed the colorful school pageant Thursday afternoon when 1,800 school children in the city beautifully depicted, with costumes and floats, the history and represented the flowers of Circleville. Thursday night elbow room was at a premium, as surrounding counties and cities in southern and central Ohio poured visitors into Circleville to see the displays, enjoy the amusements and patronize the concessions. The throng was carefree, jolly and orderly.

Long before the baby parade started Friday afternoon, crowds assembled along the line of march to see the youngest members of the younger generation as they were proudly wheeled along the streets by their elated mothers or self-conscious older sisters.

COMIC PARADE TONIGHT
The Pumpkin Show will take on the atmosphere and attire of a Mardi Gras Friday night when the comic and character parade is held at 8 o'clock. It will form on Pickaway-st., going south on Scioto to Main, east on Main to Court, south on Court to Main, east on Franklin to Pickaway, north on Pickaway to Main, west on Main to Court, north on Court to Pickaway, where the judging will take place.

BROTHERS TAKE HONORS
In the meantime, judging in all departments has been progressing and it was indicated Friday noon that approximately $2,200 will be distributed to ribbon winners among the 4,500 entries.

As was fitting, the first department to report its prize winners was that of the pumpkins and squashes, of which R. L. Brehrer is the chairman. This year the grand prize of $50 was won by three brothers, all boys, walking away from a field of their elders with their display. The exhibit in this department was the largest on record with 1,391 entries despite the unfavorable growing weather of a wet spring, dry summer and early killing frosts.

The boys who took the first prize for pumpkins and squashes are George, Donald and Frank Coon, of Walnut-twp., who are 14, 13 and 12 years old respectively. Their display contained 371 entries and 53 distinct varieties, carefully assorted and displayed in uniform rows.

Convicts went to their breakfast in the main dining room as usual, then returned to their quarters and were locked up in the long tiers of cells.

Only a few old trustees were at large within the courtyard of the prison. Guards in observation towers and at points of vantage along the walls kept constant watch over the enclosure.

The two guards of the death watch, Charles Aiston and Fred Hogaboom, said Hickman was restless during the second night in the cell of the condemned. He had slept soundly the night before.

SLENDER FITFUL
Most of the early part of the night he spent in short periods of fitful slumber broken by turns of walking about the cage.

He told his guards of his entire life, from his early boyhood in Arkansas, through his high school days in Kansas City and down to the killing of Marian Parker in Los Angeles last December. For which he is to be hanged.

The condemned youth wrote three letters during the night. They were to his brother, his mother, Mrs. Eva Hickman of Kansas City and Jerome Walsh, Kansas City attorney, who defended him in his trial.

He gave the letters to the guards outside his wooden cage and asked that they be mailed after he was hanged.

PLAYS PHONOGRAPH
At 5 a.m. Hickman got up from his cot and turned on the phonograph that had been brought to the death house for him.

One of his favorite records was "In a Monastery Garden."

Hickman watched the dawn through the window of the room as the sun rose across San Francisco bay. He then turned to the guards and said:

"Just a few hours now."

"If you want to know why I killed Marian Parker, read the first chapter of Romans," he remarked. "That will tell you better than I can—greed."

TARLTON INVENTOR HAS PLANE DEVICE

W. J. Spangler, 50, of Tarlton, has just received another patent from the government on an air-plane stabilizer. The government tried the device on its experimental field in New Jersey Wednesday.

The pilot jumped from the plane at a height of 5000 feet in a parachute and the plane came down and landed safely.

Mr. Spangler has a number of inventions to his credit, among some of which are in use with the National Cash Register Co. Another is a new clay pigeon.

PARADES ARE WITNESSED BY BIG THROGS

Three Walnut-Twp. Brothers
Walk Away With Grand Prize For Pumpkins.

More than 25,000 persons are expected to visit Circleville's Pumpkin Show Friday and an even greater throng is predicted for Saturday if the ideal weather which has smiled upon the annual fall celebration since the rain on Wednesday, the opening day, continues.

It is estimated that 16,000 spectators witnessed the colorful school pageant Thursday afternoon when 1,800 school children in the city beautifully depicted, with costumes and floats, the history and represented the flowers of Circleville. Thursday night elbow room was at a premium as surrounding counties and cities in southern and central Ohio poured visitors into Circleville to see the displays, enjoy the amusements and patronize the concessions. The throng was carefree, jolly and orderly.

Long before the baby parade started Friday afternoon, crowds assembled along the line of march to see the youngest members of the younger generation as they were proudly wheeled along the streets by their elated mothers or self-conscious older sisters.

COMIC PARADE TONIGHT

The Pumpkin Show will take on the atmosphere and attire of a Mardi Gras Friday night when the comic and characterization parade is held at 8 o'clock. It will form on Pickney-st., going south on Scioto to Main, east on Main to Court, south on Court to Franklin, east on Franklin to Pickaway, north on Pickaway to Main, west on Main to Court, north on Court to Pickney-st., where the judging will take place.

The pet parade will be held at 2:30 p. m. Saturday as the feature attraction of that day. A wide variety of entries has been made in this event.

Three bands were providing music Friday. They are Frank Carbone's, Immell's and the Adelphi K. of P. bands. All of the free acts will take place at their scheduled times, including two exhibitions daily of airplane stunt flying by Pilot F. E. Davis, of Columbus.

BROTHERS TAKE HONORS

In the meantime, judging in all departments has been progressing and it was indicated Friday noon that approximately $2,200 will be distributed to ribbon winners among the 4,500 entries.

As was fitting, the first department to report its prize winners was that of the pumpkins and squashes, of which R. L. Brehmer is the chairman. This year the grand prize of $50 was won by three brothers, all boys, walking away from a field of their elders with their display. The exhibit in this department was the largest on record with 1,391 entries despite the unfavorable growing weather of a wet spring, dry summer and early killing frosts.

The boys who took the first prize for pumpkins and squashes are George, Donald and Frank Coon, of Walnut-twp., who are 14, 13 and 12 years old respectively. Their display contained 371 entries and 53 distinct varieties, carefully assorted and displayed in uniform rows.

ANDERSON IS SECOND

J. B. Anderson, former prize winner, was obliged to step into second place this year through the enterprise of these three young-

Was Dubious—All Else Had Failed—But Konjola Worked Wonders In Stubborn Case.

MR. W. E. BATES.

Konjola—master medicine for troubles of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and for rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness is scoring a tremendous hit in Cincinnati, and everywhere it is introduced, and no wonder, when cases, scores of them, like this are reported daily. Sufferers from neuritis should read every word of this statement by Mr. W. E. Bates, 901 West Ninth street, Cincinnati:

"Four years I suffered the tortures of neuritis in every joint; there was not enough joy in life to make it worth living. Everything I tried failed miserably, and I was desperate with pain and disappointment. I read much about Konjola's wonderful effects upon neuritis, and decided to give this modern medicine a trial. In a week I was back at work as an auto body builder—hard work and suffering ended in a week. Treatments and loss of work cost me at least $1,000 in these four years. I hope every neuritis victim in the world reads about what Konjola did for me."

Konjola is sold in Circleville at Mykrantz Pharmacy, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

The Army and Yale have won two notable intersectional victories, but have yet to prove their mettle against strong opposition in their own section. The Cadets beat S. M. U., 14 to 15, two weeks ago and Yale beat Georgia a week ago, 21 to 8.

ARMY, YALE STRONG
Both big, powerful, Eleven Army and Yale shape up as the east's two outstanding teams and indications point to their meeting a week from tomorrow at New Haven as one of the big games of the eastern season.

S. M. U. uncovered a weakness in the Army's young ends, but from tackle to tackle Army has a row of football-wise giants the like of which few teams ever assemble at one time. Sprague, Perry, Hammack, Hall, Elias and others are stars of the first calibre.

The army has never beaten Harvard, but that fact is quite apt to be wiped off the record books Saturday afternoon at Cambridge when Cagle, Murrell and Hutchinson swing into action.

YALE FAVORED
Yale, with a great line and three outstanding backs in Garvey, Loud and Lumpe, should survive the Brown game and carry on to the Army engagement unbeaten.

Jess Hewley apparently has developed another high-powered scoring machine at Dartmouth, starring Al Marsters and Freddy Breitnut, a pair of highly geared halfbacks. Unlike his running mate, Breitnut kicks and passes from the southpaw side.

Columbia has a well-rounded football team, and with its stout defense may make trouble for the Indians even up in the New Hampshire hills.

Penn state took the first fall out of Pennsylvania last year, and goes to Philadelphia bent on doing the same thing all over again. A year ago Bucknell beat Penn state, 6 to 0, but Penn is prepared this time.

Babe Ruth, home run king, and Lou Gehrig, slugging first baseman, of the world's champion, New York Yankees, dominated the spotlight in the 1928 world's series classic from the first game until the final out was made.

The hitting of the crippled Yankee stars featured the four successive victories of the New York team. Numerous records were made or equalled by the big guns of the Yankee artillery and now that the shouting has died it is possible to compute them to wit:

BABE RUTH
1. Broke his own former record of 22 for runs scored in world's series by increasing his total to 31.

2. Broke his own former record of having played in eight world's series, more than any other player. His total is now nine.

3. Has established a record for hitting in world's series. Has hit better than .300 in five world's series.

4. Increased his own record of world's series home runs to 13. Those Three Homers.

5. Equalled his record of two years ago by hitting three home runs in one game.

6. Increased his record for total bases in world's series to 85. It was formerly 63.

7. Increased his record for extra bases on long hits to 48. It was formerly 36.

8. Broke own record for runs batted in with 26, bettering former record of 22.

9. Established record for bases on balls with 29.

10. Has been struck out more times in world's series than any other player, 27.

Lou Fared Well, Too
And now for Gehrig.
1. Batted in nine runs, breaking record of eight runs made by Bob Meusel.

2. Tied record of hitting four home runs in one world's series, held by Babe Ruth.

3. Broke record for extra bases on long hits, in one series by gathering 13. Ruth held the mark formerly with 12.

4. Tied former hitting average for one world's series with mark of .545.

5. Broke record by getting on base eight consecutive times at bat.

As a member of the Boston Red Sox, Ruth pitched three world's series games, and was never beaten. He is of course known for his phenomenal hitting, but his pitching, his fielding, and his throwing arm cannot be well overlooked. The Babe admits himself, the biggest kick he received from the present series was his spectacular catch of Frisch's long drive in the final game.

The Ohio Utilities Co. has a very attractive booth and display on E. Main-st. The booth is decorated with fodder and pumpkins and makes a very attractive display. Everything electrical for the home is on exhibition which includes sweeper, stove, washing machine, ironer, irons, toasters, radios, etc.

Their window is filled with electrical appliances and nickel ware.

Another unique exhibition they have is a Westinghouse grid glow tube. By placing one's hand near a nickel ball a bulb lights and a sweeper starts. The power of this tube is measured by hypower. The tube was invented by a Westinghouse engineer named Knoles.

WALNUT TEAM WINS

The Walnut eleven went to victory by playing Williamsport 4 to 0 game Friday.

Due to good weather and a dry field the game was a fast and hard fought one. In the first quarter Walnut hit through the line and ran the ends successfully and they had made a complete march to the goal but because of the backfield in motion when the ball was bucked across, the touchdown didn't count and the quarter ended 0 to 0.

The second quarter brought the first score of the game with Walnut executing a beautiful long pass and several good gains through the line which resulted in a touchdown. Nothings at tempted to drop-kick for the extra point but failed and the second quarter ended with a score of 6 to 0.

The third quarter revealed a more vigorous line attack and long end runs with neither team being able to score.

Then came the fourth quarter with many substitutes for Williamsport. They fought hard trying many passes and even though Walnut did slow down a bit they kept a watchful outlook and were well on their way for a touchdown when the whistle blew.

P. T. A. MEETS

The Walnut P. T. A. held their second meeting of this school year Friday night, Oct. 12. The school orchestra made its initial appearance for this year. Mrs. H. S. Reber then gave an account of the state P. T. A. convention to which she was sent as a delegate from the Walnut association. Supt. R. H. Sponsler gave a short talk about the condition of the school children's teeth and proposed that a clinic be held at the school and their teeth be fixed, the parents paying as much as they could afford of the bill and the P. T. A. the remainder. A committee with Mr. Sponsler as chairman was appointed to take charge of this matter. Because of the State Teachers' meeting Nov. 9, the date of the next P. T. A. meeting has been changed to Nov. 2.

Walnut-twp. school will have a half holiday Friday, Oct. 19, to attend the Pumpkin Show.

WOLVERINES AROUSE FEAR ON GAME EVE

Jinx of Yostmen, However, Only Thing In Way Of State Victory.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 19.—The Michigan Wolverines—their fighting blood thoroughly aroused by two successive defeats—will arrive here tonight and on tomorrow will meet Ohio State's scarlet and gray.

The Wolverine's tail has been twisted twice—first by Ohio Wesleyan, a Buckeye Conference school, and second by Indiana whose grid warriors had never beaten Michigan before—and a tenacious fight is expected.

Ohio State, backed by two victories—one of them over Northwestern—enter the fray the odds on favorite but nevertheless with due respect for their Michigan rivals.

Michigan has won six successive annual games from the Bucks, and won in years when State's team was believed invincible, and Coach Wilce has cautioned his varsity against over-confidence.

Plenty of confidence was in evidence today, but in conformance with Dr. Wilce's instructions, there was no over-confidence. Even the "down town coaches"—those perennial depesters who always get the dope wrong—were rather skeptical.

In mind that they are not only recreational but also they are educational.

HALLOWEEN CARNIVAL

The Vocational Smith Hughes departments of the Walnut-twp. school will give a Halloween carnival at the school auditorium Thursday evening, Oct. 25, 1928. Everybody come. Admission is free. Try your luck at the fish pond, learn your fate at the fortune telling booth, visit the art gallery, drink cider and munch doughnuts to your heart's content. There will be all kinds of sandwiches, good old pumpkin pie and corn. Come in costume, join in the fun and parade. Perhaps you'll be the ones to win the prize for the most individual couple.

SINGS FOR ROTARY

The Circleville Rotary club held a very short meeting Thursday noon. Due to the Pumpkin Show no speaker attended the meeting. The Rotarians were entertained by Miss Helen Marion, soloist assisted by Miss Abbie Clarke at the piano. The meeting was a 100 per cent meeting, every member being present.

Many five-cent cigars, it is true, made largely from "cuttings" and poorer grades of leaves not considered good enough for higher priced cigars. But here, gentlemen, is a five-cent cigar made entirely of selected tobacco leaves laden with true, smooth, flavor and fragrant aroma.

Think of it!—a five-cent cigar taining no bitter under-ripe top nor flat-tasting over-ripe bottom of the tobacco plant. No short "scraps" to crumble in your mouth. But only fully-ripe, long-filler leaves laden with true, smooth, flavor and fragrant aroma.

WOLVERINES AROUSE FEAR ON GAME EVE

Jinx of Yostmen, However, Only Thing In Way Of State Victory.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 19.—The Michigan Wolverines—their fighting blood thoroughly aroused by two successive defeats—will arrive here tonight and on tomorrow will meet Ohio State's scarlet and gray.

The Wolverine's tail has been twisted twice—first by Ohio Wesleyan, a Buckeye Conference school, and second by Indiana whose grid warriors had never beaten Michigan before—and a tenacious fight is expected.

Ohio State, backed by two victories—one of them over Northwestern enter the fray the odds on favorite but nevertheless with due respect for their Michigan rivals.

Michigan has won six successive annual games from the Bucks, and won in years when State's team was believed invincible, and Coach Wilce has cautioned his varsity against over-confidence.

Plenty of confidence was in evidence today, but, in conformance with Dr. Wilce's instructions, there was no over-confidence. Even the "down town coaches"—those perennial depesters who always get the dope wrong—were rather skeptical.

In mind that they are not only recreational but also they are educational.

HALLOWEEN CARNIVAL

The Vocational Smith Hughes departments of the Walnut-twp. school will give a Halloween carnival at the school auditorium Thursday evening, Oct. 25, 1928. Everybody come. Admittance is free. Try your luck at the fish pond, learn your fate at the fortune telling booth, visit the art gallery, drink cider and munch doughnuts to your heart's content. There will be all kinds of sandwiches, good ole' pumpkin pie and coffee. Come in costume, join in the fun and parade. Perhaps you'll be the ones to win the prize for the most individual couple.

SINGS FOR ROTARY

The Circleville Rotary club held a very short meeting Thursday noon. Due to the Pumpkin Show no speaker attended the meeting. The Rotarians were entertained by Miss Helen Marion, soloist assisted by Miss Abbie Clarke at the piano. The meeting was a 100 per cent meeting, every member being present.

AVIATOR PLAYS SAFE.
Mr. Larry Harris is in Circleville with his new Lincoln biplane during the Pumpkin Show, and has already carried many passengers. Flights are being made over Circleville.
Mr. Harris realizes the value of going in the air well prepared and he takes no chances. Therefore, he uses Sinclair oil, and has been using it for seven years. Mr. Harris can trust it in any plane you can trust it in. Play safe, drive to our station, N. Court-st. opposite court and try out Sinclair oil and Adv. Garnett & Co.

With emphasis—we state that here is the very finest cigar
a nickel ever bought

NO QUESTION about it—Havana Ribbon, as it comes to you today, is the most remarkable example you ever of what five cents can buy in a cigar.

Many five-cent cigars, it is true, are made largely from "cuttings" and poorer grades of leaves not considered good enough for higher priced cigars.

But, here, gentlemen, is a five-cent cigar made entirely of selected tobacco cured and age-mellowed with care and patience.

Think of it!—a five-cent cigar taining no bitter under-ripe top nor flat-tasting over-ripe bottom of the tobacco plant. No short "scraps" to crumble in your mouth. But only fully-ripe, long-filler leaves laden with true, smooth, flavor and fragrant aroma.

Only years and years of experience combined with immense production can make such a thing possible. Havana Ribbon is the realization of a true lightful smoke for five cents.

UNIQUE EXHIBITION AT UTILITIES STORE

The Ohio Utilities Co. has a very attractive booth and display on E. Main-st. The booth is decorated with fodder and pumpkins and makes a very attractive display. Everything electrical for the home is on exhibition which includes sweeper, stove, washing machine, ironer, irons, toasters, radios, etc.

Their window is filled with electrical appliances and nickel ware.

Another unique exhibition they have is a Westinghouse grid glow tube. By placing one's hand near a nickel ball a bulb lights and a sweeper starts. The power of this tube is measured by fly-power. The tube was invented by a Westinghouse engineer named Knoles.

Recently Elber Garry, N. Y. steel engraver while sitting in his New York City apartment started an entire steel plant in Pittsburgh with one of these instruments.

The device is used principally for burglar alarm systems as when the intruder places his hand near the combination of a safe the alarm is released.

BIBLE THOUGHT

GOD IN US — Lord, thou wilt ordain peace for us: for thou also hast wrought all our works in us. — Isa. 26:12.

PRAYER — In that day, Lord, we will sing that new song throughout the world.

THE DREAM PERSISTS

The gone-to-seed mining town of Bodie, Calif., is trying to put on a come-back.

Bodie has been quiet—quiet as death of late. Back in the '80's it was a boom town. In one single year, $23,000,000 worth of gold and $4,000,000 worth of silver were taken out of it. Many a western mansion was built with the yellow dust of Bodie's lodes; many an honest frontiersman was enabled to don a silk hat and take his astonished eyes to the art galleries and what-not of Paris.

Then Bodie went to seed. Gold and silver production fell to a net total of something like $500,000,000 a year and the population dwindled to a scant 75.

Now Los Angeles and San Francisco capitalists are taking a hand. Old diggings will be worked over and it is believed that the golden stream will flow once more.

These old boom towns of the far west are immensely interesting. They were interesting in their heyday, when they were packed with turbulent, rowdy life; interesting in their decline, when jackrabbits scamped through the streets where the makers of millions once walked; interesting in their occasional revival when a new generation tries to restore the old-time glory.

The west has been a land of dreams, anyway. For a century it has been the promised land to great multitudes of people. New England farmers, tired of struggling with rocky soil and harsh winters, loaded their goods into creaking wagons and followed the setting sun, sure that somewhere—in Oregon, Wyoming, Colorado or California—they would find kinder skies and richer land. With them went similar hopefuls from Virginia, New York, Pennsylvania the midwest, meeting dangers and hardships without protest, confident that El Dorado lay just beyond the western horizon.

Some of them found it, of course, and some of them didn't. There were gold mines and rich farm lands, and there were failures and disappointments. Some of the pioneers' towns became rich cities like Seattle, San Francisco, Portland, Denver; and some of them became boom towns like Bodie, which burned brightly for a while and then flickered low.

But the dream persisted. It underlies all American thought. All American ideals. Buried beneath our typical "booster" spirit is the unspoken conviction that America is to be different and finer than any other place; the unexpressed dream of the pioneers, that we shall build cities and towns and an open countryside where every man and woman can have a chance for the good things in life and where the troubles of the ages can be overcome.

The episode of the town of Bodie brings to mind. It is a good thing for us to remember. For it is our heritage and our responsibility.

THE PRICELESS BALLOT

It should be with a thrill that the young man or woman registers his or her name for the first time for voting. Young people may well have a sentiment of pride in taking on their share of the work of governing the country.

The ballot is a priceless possession. It has cost an infinite amount not merely in the struggles of our ancestors, but in the efforts of men and women who for ages have fought against kings and tyrants to establish democracy.

The ballot does not necessarily give freedom or good government. All over the world are nations where people have the ballot, but they do not know how to use it, and their democratic government is a farce and a sham.

GOOD ROADS BOND ISSUES

The election of a president is not the only important issue facing the voters at the coming election.

Improvements, totaling the amazing sum of $330,000,000, will be passed on by voters in the various states.

This speaks volumes for the way our civilization is developing. Many men and women who have not yet reached middle age can recall the day when a paved road in the country was almost unheard of; when wagons and carriages plowed along through sand and dust in dry weather and through deep mud in wet. A decade ago, when a motorist asked another how the roads were on a certain route, he meant, "Are they passable, or are they all mud and sink holes?" Now, when he asks that question, he simply wants to know if they are smooth enough for him to drive at 50 miles an hour, or if they need resurfacing and will hold his speed down to 25.

Undoubtedly, the voters will approve the bulk of these bond issues. Good roads are vital to our national welfare.

SPIRIT of the PRESS

There may be some farmers who think they need farm relief, but for real suffering look at the city fellow who thinks he needs relief for his thirst.

The sum of $714,000 has been appropriated in New York for school baths. Does this mean they are going to make the kids come back to school on Saturday night?

A night club is an institution run by a city slicker for the benefit of those from out of town who are not supposed to know any better.

What a comfort and joy it would be and how much trouble an editor would be saved if some system could be found whereby everything would be on the front page of the paper.

ANOTHER AIR CRASH

Broadway Love

by Thomas Edgefow

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

JANET WILDE is the young and pretty daughter of Fenimore Wilde, one of Broadway's favorite actors. His son, Frank, is an idler and like his father, a spendthrift. Janet meets a young musician, Leonard Quigg, who attracts her. Janet's father drops dead after a brilliant performance, leaving her and her brother almost penniless. She obtains the position of confidential secretary to John Montague, theatrical impresario. (At the same time she secures a friendship with a brilliant young doctor, David Churchill, who is secretly in love with Janet. Her employer offers to make her a star and settle a large sum of money on her with provisions. She swears at his "generosity" and makes him promise never to mention the matter again. Later she meets Leonard Quigg's uncle, Chester Quigg, the artist, and his young daughter, Alice. Again Montague renews his offer and Janet resigns. David Churchill offers Janet a job as his secretary, and she accepts. One evening they are having dinner together and he tells her he does not love his wife and is contemplating divorce. Finally, he admits that he is in love with Janet.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIV.
JANET did not reply for a moment. She was thunderstruck at David's avowal. She sat there looking across the little table at him.
"Are you furious with me?" David asked.
"I'm not furious," Janet returned in a friendly voice. "If you were ill, David, I'd be sorry for you. I'm sorry for you now, because you are ill—mentally."
"Because I happen to love you?" Because I want to get a divorce and marry you more than I've ever wanted anything before?"
"Just because of that?" Janet nodded. "I hadn't any idea of this." She paused, and then asked suddenly: "Did you give me that job because of this? The truth, David?"
"Half and half," he told her. "I did need someone like you very, very badly. Also, because I wanted to be near you, but I ask you to believe this—I never calculated on tonight. I didn't mean to tell you a thing, Janet, until I was free."

"In that case," Janet said, "I'm very glad you did tell me. David, I'm rather keen on this divorce question, and I have certain theories about it. I think people rush into it—just about as quickly as they rush into marriage. And it isn't so difficult. All you have to do is to fall in love."
"I've done that already," he said ruefully.
"Fall in love again with your wife," Janet went on. "Don't say it can't be done, because you don't know. You don't know anything about love—when it will happen. I mean, you chanced to meet me, and because I'm not as homely as a mud fence, and because you are in a state of mind where your wife irritates you, you think that you have fallen in love with me. In a week, in a month, in a year, it might be somebody else—and I don't see why you couldn't contrive to look at your wife from a different angle. At least don't rush into a divorce, and as for myself, that must stop. I don't care for you, and I never would."

"Anybody else?" he asked. "I know I shouldn't ask—but is there?"
"No," Janet said. "I don't care for you, and I never would."

"Naturally, I'm not going to see you all the time, as that would be as foolish as disappearing altogether," she went on logically; "so you must find another secretary. David, I will stay with you for a week or so, until we get the ideal person. I will take care of that—and I think that's about all," she concluded.

"You won't continue to work for me?" he asked.
"Janet shook her head."
"Then what will you do?" she dismissed it. "I am perfectly capable and I can always get a job. (The point is you, David. You are going to pull yourself out of this, and think a little bit about the children and a little bit about yourself.)"

"You're being very wonderful," he said, a little bitterly. "You have behaved magnificently. It is how easy it is for you! I am to be the one who loves. It is my enough for you to be firm and firm and strong—because you don't give a hoot about me. I wonder how you would have behaved, Janet, if it had been asked for you to care for me?"
"I might have been a weakling, and argued that I had a right to you—ignoring the perfectly good claims of your wife and children," Janet retorted. "But it's honest, and if I haven't given you a square deal, Dr. Churchill, inform me of the fact!"
"Well, it sounds simple enough," David said as he rose, and looked for his coat. "All I have to do is to forget that I love you."

"Which will be much easier than you anticipate," Janet remarked as she held out her hand.
"I suppose you have been very logical and sane, but you can't expect me to enthuse about it—yet," he smiled grimly.
"I think I've operated successfully—just as successfully as you did this afternoon," Janet protested. "Wake up, David, and get over it! Remember again, your career, and if you don't want to remember your wife—and I'll bet she has a whole lot on her side—remember your children. I'll be at the office as usual tomorrow, but I shall be late as I will drop in the Employment Agency to see about a secretary for you."

When he had gone, Janet cleared up the dinner dishes. She was glad that she had something to do. She did not want to worry about her future. Still, apart from David's sentimental attack, she had to face things.
Only that morning, she had received a letter from Frank. He seemed moody, and there was an illuminating remark in it, pointing out that the very rich never did anything for joy. In other words, Frank had no job in sight.
It was just after nine when Janet finished washing up. She was wondering what she would do with the evening, when the telephone rang.
"Is that you Janet Wilde?" a voice Janet loved came over the wire. "This is Alice Quigg, and things at the studio are far from satisfactory. I am not very happy, Janet, and if you could conveniently come and see us—why," and Janet's heart contracted as she heard Alice break down in tears at the other end of the wire.

THEATRES

RIDES IN RODEO
Hoot Gibson in "Painted Ponies" is the feature at the Grand theater tonight. In the picture Hoot rides in a small town rodeo and carried off the prizes, much to the despair of the local hero who had thought himself the winner. An added feature is the ninth chapter of "The Scarlet Arrow."

KEATON BRINGS FUN
A boat race that he ruins by falling into the water; a long war that he ruins by falling into the machine gun bullets, and countless yards of film that he ruins by taking more than one picture on, are among the bits of damage by which Buster Keaton makes a series of hilarious comedy events in "The Cameramen," his new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature now being shown at the Metropolitan theatre.

Although for laughing purposes only, the frozen-faced comedian has injected a very pretty love story in the midst of a huge collection of laughs, and the result is one of the most interesting plays he has given the Keaton fans in years Friday.

THRILL OPENS PICTURE
A runaway horse is so uncommon nowadays in this age of motor transport, that it is a distinct novelty. So that in "The Good-Bye Kiss" which comes Sunday and Monday to the Clifton theatre, a runaway affords an exciting opening. When it is stated that the climax of this Mack Sennett feature, released by First National Pictures, twenty tons of dynamite are exploded, it will be seen that there is no lack of exciting action.

Romance affords a big part of the story with Sally Eilers and Matty Kemp as the principals, and Johnny Burke, erstwhile vaudeville monologist, supplying comedy by the mile.

Silver Coat for Ivory

Ivory is given a silverlike finish that actually is composed of tiny silver grains by placing it in a dilute silver nitrate solution of common salt until it turns deep yellow. Next the ivory is dipped in water, and exposed in the sun until it blackens. On rubbing, the black surface changes to a brilliant silver.—Popular Science Monthly.

At the same time she enters a friendship with a brilliant young doctor, David Churchill, who is secretly in love with Janet. Her employer offers to make her a star and settle a large sum of money on her—with provisions. She sneers at his "generosity" and makes him promise never to mention the matter again. Later she meets Leonard Quigg's uncle, Chester Quigg, the artist, and his young daughter, Alice. Again Montague renews his offer and Janet resigns. David Churchill offers Janet a job as his secretary, and she accepts it. One evening they are having dinner together and he tells her he does not love his wife and is contemplating divorce. Finally, he admits that he is in love with Janet.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

JANET did not reply for a moment. She was thunderstruck at David's avowal. She sat there looking across the little table at him.

"Are you furious with me?" David asked.

"I'm not furious," Janet returned in a friendly voice. "If you were ill, David, I'd be sorry for you. I'm sorry for you now, because you are ill—mentally."

"Because I happen to love you? Because I want to get a divorce and marry you more than I've ever wanted anything before?"

"Just because of that?" Janet nodded. "I hadn't any idea of this." She paused, and then asked suddenly: "Did you give me that job because of this? The truth, David?"

"Half and half," he told her. "I did need someone like you very, very badly. Also, because I wanted to be near you, but I ask you to believe this—I never calculated on tonight. I didn't mean to tell you a thing, Janet, until I was free."

"In that case," Janet said, "I'm very glad you did tell me. David, I'm rather keen on this divorce question, and I have certain theories about it. I think people rush into it—just about as quickly as they rush into marriage. And it isn't so difficult. All you have to do is to fall in love."

"I've done that already," he said ruefully.

"Fall in love again with your wife," Janet went on. "Don't say it can't be done, because you don't know. You don't know anything about love—when it will happen. I mean, you chanced to meet me, and because I'm not as homely as a mud fence, and because you are in a state of mind where your wife irritates you, you think that you have fallen in love with me."

In a week, in a month, in a year, it might be somebody else—and I don't see why you couldn't contrive to look at your wife from a different angle. At least don't rush into a divorce, and as for myself, that must stop. I don't care for you, and I never will."

"Naturally, I'm not going to see you all the time, as that would be as foolish as disappearing altogether," she went on logically; "so you must find another secretary. David, I will stay with you for a week or so, until we get the ideal person. I will take care of that—and I think that's about all," she concluded.

"You won't continue to work for me?" he asked.

Janet shook her head.

"Then what will you do?"

"Don't worry about me," she dismissed it. "I am perfectly capable and I can always get a job. The point is you, David, you are going to pull yourself together, and think a little bit more about the children and a little less about yourself."

"You're being very wonderful," he said, a little bitterly. "You have behaved magnificently, but how easy it is for you! I mean to be the one who loves. It is enough for you to be firm and strong—and because you don't give a hoot about me, I wonder how you would have behaved, Janet, if it had been for you to care for me?"

"I might have been a weakling, and argued that I had a right to you—ignoring the perfectly good claims of your wife and children," Janet retorted. "But let's hope, and if I haven't given you a square deal, Dr. Churchill, inform me of the fact."

"Well, it sounds simple enough," David said as he rose, and looked for his coat. "All I have to do—is to forget that I love you."

"Which will be much easier than you anticipate," Janet remarked as she held out her hand.

"I suppose you have been very logical and sane, but you can't expect me to enthuse about it—yet," he smiled grimly.

"I think I've operated successfully—just as successfully as you did this afternoon," Janet protested. "Wake up, David, and get over it! Remember again, your career, and if you don't want to remember your wife—and I'll bet she has a whole lot on her side—remember your children. I'll be at the office as usual tomorrow, but I shall be late as I will drop in the Employment Agency to see about a secretary for you."

When he had gone, Janet cleared up the dinner dishes. She was glad that she had something to do. She did not want to worry about her future. Still, apart from David's sentimental attack, she had to face things.

Only that morning, she had received a letter from Frank. He seemed moody, and there was an illuminating remark in it, pointing out that the very rich never did anything for you. In other words, Frank had no job in sight.

It was just after nine when Janet finished washing up. She was wondering what she would do with the evening, when the telephone rang.

"Is that you Janet Wilde?" a voice Janet loved came over the wire. "This is Alice Quigg, and things at the studio are far from satisfactory. I am not very happy, Janet, and if you could conveniently come and see us—why," and Janet's heart contracted as she heard Alice break down in tears at the other end of the wire.

RIDES IN RODEO

Hoot Gibson in "Painted Ponies" is the feature at the Grand theater tonight. In the picture Hoot rides in a small town rodeo and carried off the prizes, much to the despair of the local hero who had thought himself the winner. An added feature is the ninth chapter of "The Scarlet Arrow."

KEATON BRINGS FUN

A boat race that he ruins by falling into the water; a long war that he ruins by falling into the machine gun bullets, and countless yards of film that he ruins by taking more than one picture on, are among the bits of damage by which Buster Keaton makes a series of hilarious comedy events in "The Cameraman," his new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature now being shown at the Metropolitan theatre.

Although for laughing purposes only, the frozen-faced comedian has injected a very pretty love story in the midst of a huge collection of laughs, and the result is one of the most interesting plays he has given the Keaton

THRILL OPENS PICTURE

A runaway horse is so uncommon nowadays in this age of motor transport, that it is a distinct novelty. So that in "The Good-Eye Kiss" which comes Sunday and Monday to the Cliftona theatre, a runaway affords an exciting opening. When it is stated that the climax of this Mack Sennett feature, released by First National Pictures, twenty tons of dynamite are exploded, it will be seen that there is no lack of exciting action.

Romance affords a big part of the story with Sally Eilers and Matty Kemp as the principals, and Johnny Burke, erstwhile vaudeville monologist, supplying comedy by the mile.

Silver Coat for Ivory

Ivory is given a silverlike finish that actually is composed of tiny silver grains by placing it in a dilute silver nitrate solution of common salt until it turns deep yellow. Next the ivory is dipped in water, and exposed in the sun until it blackens. On rubbing, the black surface changes to a brilliant silver.—Popular Science Monthly.

HIGHWAY DUTY TO BE SOON

If good weather prevails between Chillicothe and mouth via the Scioto, be resumed in three days according to the prediction of Murray G. Anderson, superintendent of the department of highways.

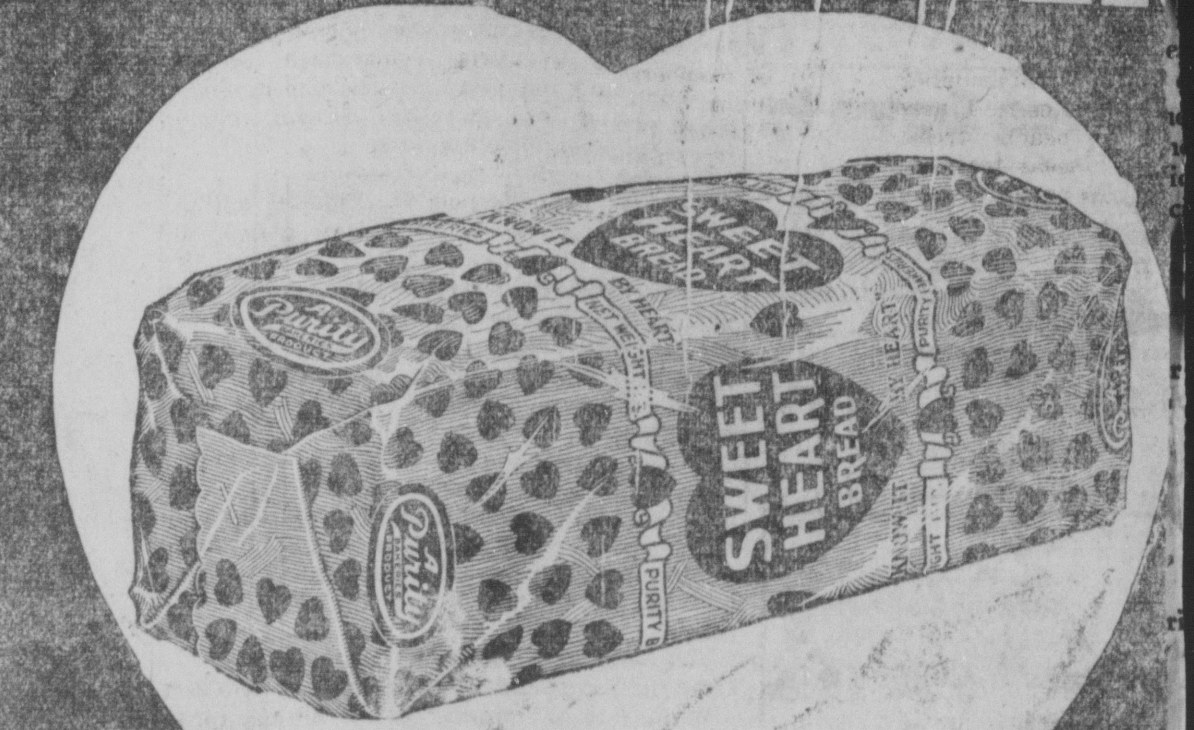

For the past few months the Chillicothe-Portsmouth road has been detoured by way of Waverly while a new road just south of it to the Pike-co line is paved.

The only break in the road is over the Davide Hill the old winding road done.

A float carrying a cut-out of the famous Logan Elm with Frederick Colville and Don Wolfe on either side in Indian costumes followed. Next in line were a band of redskins, including chiefs and squaws. Following these was "The Log Cabin" also a cut-out, with Emil Ross and Ed Heacker as Puritans looking for the first Indian to get out of line and to sink near the cabin. Puritan boys and maids marched behind this, and in front of a splendid representation of the "Covered Wagon" driven by John Caldwell. Bob Roundhouse, Evan Phillips and Bob Stout, together with Martha Mary Wolfe, were braving the dangers of the wild plains in their rickety wagon. Mary Mae Haswell was a Puritan miss looking out of the back of the canopied top, with her gun primed for any redskin. Early settlers followed behind the wagon.

MUHLBERG

The school library has been revised and placed on the Standard Dewey Decimal checking system. We are unable to locate several volumes due to loose checking. We will appreciate any help to locate any of our missing volumes. We have ordered copies, which were missing from our News International encyclopedia.

The manual training class have been rather handicapped due to the reconditioning of their tools.
New projects were begun this week.

Muhlenberg-twp did not lower the quality of their baseball team last Friday when they shut out
Saltcreek by a score of 6 to 0.
On this Friday we play Darby
High school at Darbyville.

Our regular chapel period is on Friday at nine o'clock. On last week's program we had a very interesting talk by Rev. F. Hodges on the west.

SCHOOL PARADE

and all the football players, came some Red Coats marching as if on their way to some war. A float carrying a cut-out of the famous Logan Elm with Frederick Colville and Don Wolfe on either side in Indian costumes followed. Next in line were a band of redskins, including chiefs and squaws. Following these was "The Log Cabin" also a cut-out, with Emil Ross and Ed Heacker as Puritans looking for the first Indian to get out of line and to sink near the cabin. Puritan boys and maids marched behind this, and in front of a splendid representation of the "Covered Wagon" driven by John Caldwell. Bob Roundhouse, Evan Phillips and Bob Stout, together with Martha Mary Wolfe, were braving the dangers of the wild plains in their rickety wagon.
Mary Mae Haswell was a Puritan miss looking out of the back of the canopied top, with her gun primed for any redskin. Early settlers followed behind the wagon.

SILVER PUMPKIN UNIQUE

The most unique of all the floats was the last of the parade. This was a huge silver pumpkin in honor of the celebration of the Silver Jubilee Pumpkin Show. The perfect shape of the pumpkin was astounding and its natural looking stem reached so high that a number of times the truck was forced to stop while electric wires across the streets were either raised or removed.

C. F. Zangelin, manual training instructor, was responsible for this last float, which was the most outstanding in the entire pageant because it was so mammoth and so unusual. Mr. Zangelin also lent his skill and aid on the other high school floats.

Circleville has gained quite a reputation for the public school pageant on Thursday of the Pumpkin Show and Thursday af-
grapher took moving pictures of the floats and youngsters.

day, was found dead in his smashed airplane shortly after 7 a.m. today in a dense woods three miles west of Polk.

hillside. It was believed that

MOTORIST KILLED

WILMINGTON, O., Oct. 19.—
Clarence E. Acher, 25, was killed near here today when his automobile crashed into a narrow bridge.
Acher was thrown 30 feet from the car. His neck was broken.
The man's face was badly scalded without apparent cause, and officials immediately began an investigation.

GYPSIES RUN OUT

Six auto loads of gypsies were run out of town at noon by Officer McCrady. These Arabs of the dusty trails have paid Circleville visits on former journeys and departed with a great deal more than they came with, according to the police department.

A car driven by Frank Smith,
Elmwood-Ave., Columbus, collided

Tweed From Top To Toe For Smart Sportswoman.

By FRANCES PAGET
Copyright, 1928, by Women's Wear Magazine.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—With the fashion observer on tiptoe to greet any indication of what the fashionable set has accepted for the fall season in costumes, millinery and accessories, early outdoor sporting events are competing in interest with smart luncheon rendezvous in town. Already two distinct types have established themselves as early favorites, the tweed costume and that of transparent velvet.

The former is versatile in its interpretations. The long-coat ensemble is seen in greatest numbers, but the short jacket type and the one-piece frock are also important. Judging from first indications, it would appear that the tweeds will be worn not only by the ultra-smart woman, but also by the woman whose income is limited. In the matter of sheer velvet, however, the patterned weaves promise to be a general fashion, while plain black will undoubtedly be much in favor with fashionables for formal afternoon wear.

A new development in the tweed ensemble is the tuck-in blouse, either of wool jersey or silk crepe. This was first observed in numbers on Futurity Day at Belmont Park, where at least four members of the Turf and Field Club sponsored this style. The tuck-in blouse complemented both the tweed and soft monotone woolen costume, yellow or beige being chosen with the ruddy brown tweeds, and white with the black cloth types.

MOST PERSONS DIE FROM ILLS OF ANCESTORS, EXPERT CLAIMS

Heredity Held To Be Tremendously Influential In Cause of Death.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Sixty-five percent of all humans die of diseases which killed their ancestors, Dr. Charles Mayo, noted Rochester, Minn., surgeon told members of the American public health association who are holding their 57th annual conference here.

"Heredity is tremendously influential in the causes of death," Dr. Mayo said.

The Rochester surgeon was one of the central figures in what was termed the most significant cancer discussion "held in some time."

By invitation of Dr. Herman Bundesen, Chicago, president of the association six noted specialists on cancer joined in the discussion before the association. Besides Dr. Mayo they were Dr. Joseph C. Bloodgood, professor of surgery at Johns Hopkins university; Dr. William Carpenter McCarty, pathologist, Mayo Clinic; General Cunningham, Mayo Clinic; associate professor of pathology, Chicago University; and Dr. George A. Soper, managing director of the American Society for the control of cancer.

DEATH RATE HIGH
"From 125,000 to 150,000 people are going to die of cancer this year," Dr. McCarty said.

All six of the specialists discussed prevention of cancer almost as much as they did the curing of cancer.

"For the individual," Dr. Bloodgood said, "there are definite preventive measures. This is the important thing to remember: Cancer starts from things which are not cancer."

"Moles, birthmarks, and other skin signs should be examined for cancerous tendencies and then removed. Dirt on the face may turn to skin cancer. Coal miners, whose faces get so dirty they are compelled to wash them frequently, seldom get this form of the disease, but cab drivers and farmers, with a steady but not necessarily covering accumulation of dirt, are commonly sufferers."

BEWARE OF CURES

"Beware of cancer cures," Dr. Mayo said. "I have read of not less than 3,000 cures for cancer, and I can count on the fingers of one hand those which are of any value whatever. Quacks and charlatans are preying upon thousands of unfortunate cancer sufferers. They charge their $300—that is the regular quick fee—and instead of getting better, the patients steadily reach the stage where surgery, radium and the X-Ray, our accepted cures, can never help them."

As a result of the discussion the appointment of a committee to form a cancer clinic in Chicago to serve the middle west was announced. This clinic will be similar to those already established in New York and Boston.

All the specialists declared that heredity is a dominating factor in cancer and that education will be the principal means of removing the disease from humanity.

"A community informed of the nature and danger of cancer will have fewer hopeless cases of the disease and consequently fewer deaths. An enlightened people is now the greatest hope against cancer," it was said.

COUNTY PUMPKINS PRIZED BY MILLS

Well Known Restaurateur Seeks To Purchase Local Product For Pies.

An announcement received Friday from James O. Mills, operator of the Mills restaurants in Columbus, Cleveland and Cincinnati said that, in all probability, the entire supply of fresh pumpkin for use in Mills restaurants will be contracted following the Circleville show, and that the Pickaway County product will be used exclusively.

Plans had been made to send Mills buyers to the Circleville show, but the tremendous crowds moving into Columbus to attend the Michigan-Ohio State football game, prevented their absence from duties.

If no other arrangements had been made by growers and it was possible to secure the first and second prize winning pumpkins, they would be made the subject of feature window displays in his Columbus stores, Mr. Mills stated. Following custom, seeds from the premium pumpkins would be returned to the growers.

On account of their piquant flavor and full-meated properties, Pickaway County pumpkins, according to Mr. Mills, are unexcelled for pie making and provide a uniform standard of material which is strictly adhered to by chain restaurant operators.

NEW DRAPERIES for A FEW CENTS

By Mae Martin

All of us realize nowadays how bright-colored draperies seem to invite people in, and how warm touches of color in spreads, cushions and runners help to make us love our own surroundings.

No woman need deny herself these touches of cheer, because they can easily be had at the expense of a few cents and a little planning. Curtains that are faded or drab in color can be made bright and pleasing with a package or so of Diamond Dyes. Then spreads, covers, runners, etc. can be tinted or dyed to match. Anyone can do it. Tinting with Diamond Dyes is as easy as bluing, and dyeing takes just a little more time. Brilliant new colors appear like magic, right over the old, faded colors. Diamond Dyes give true, fadeless colors. They are the kind of dyes used when the cloth was made. Only Diamond Dyes produce perfect results. Insist on them and save disappointment.

My new book, "Color Craft," gives hundreds of dollar-saving suggestions for beautifying your home and clothes. 64 pages, fully illustrated in colors. It's FREE. Just write Mae Martin, Home Service Department, Diamond Dyes, Burlington, Vermont.

Miss Thornton not only has the honor of making the best picture in winning this week's contest but received $10 as the first prize. She also gives credit to Mrs. Ryan and her daughter, who she says are splendid subjects for an ideal mother and child portrait. "Quacks and charlatans are preying upon thousands of unfortunate cancer sufferers. They charge them $300—that is the regular quick fee—and instead of getting better, the patients steadily reach the stage where surgery, radium and the X-Ray our accepted 'cures,' can never help them."

As a result of the discussion the appointment of a committee to form a cancer clinic in Chicago to serve the middle west was announced. This clinic will be similar to those already established in New York and Boston.

All the specialists declared that heridity is a dominating factor in cancer and that education will be the principal means of removing the disease from humanity.

"A community informed of the nature and danger of cancer will have fewer hopeless cases of the disease and consequently fewer deaths. An enlightened people is now the greatest hope against cancer," it was said.

COUNTY PUMPKINS PRIZED BY MILLS

Well Known Restaurateur Seeks To Purchase Local Product For Pies.

An announcement received Friday from James O. Mills, operator of the Mills restaurants in Columbus, Cleveland and Cincinnati said that, in all probability, the entire supply of fresh pumpkin for use in Mills restaurants will be contracted following the Circleville show, and that the Pickaway County product will be used exclusively.

Plans had been made to send Mills buyers to the Circleville show but the tremendous crowds moving into Columbus to attend the Michigan-Ohio State football game prevented their absence from duties.

If no other arrangements had been made by growers and it was possible to secure the first and second prize winning pumpkins, they would be made the subject of feature window displays in his Columbus stores, Mr. Mills stated. Following custom, seeds from the premium pumpkins would be returned to the growers.

On account of their piquant flavor and full-meated properties, Pickaway County pumpkins, according to Mr. Mills, are unexcelled for pie making and provide a uniform standard of material which is strictly adhered to by chain restaurant operators.
